Young mom's shocking story of revenge

I made love to my husband's killer — to get him to confess!

TRAGEDY: widow Maria Gentile with her daughter Angela.

By SUSAN JIMISON
Staff writer

Heartbroken widow Maria Gentile went to bed with her dead husband's killer — so she could get him to confess he'd cold-bloodedly murdered her mate!

Now Simon Burgio, 17, and two accomplices are in jail, charged with shooting Calogero Gentile, 29, and dumping his body in a field near his home in Sommatino, Italy.

"I thought I would die — I was making love to the man who had taken from me the dearest person in my life," recalled Maria, mother of a 2-year-old daughter. "My first instinct was to kill him with my bare hands to get revenge. Instead, I repressed my true feelings, and continued to pretend I loved him. The next day I went to the police and turned him in."

Maria's husband of three years was found dead on January 24. He had been shot twice, but there were no clues to the identity of his killers or the motive behind his murder.

The next day I went to the cops and turned him in Police were baffled, but the dead man's grieving young widow began to suspect she knew who Calogero's killer was — and why the cops had murdered her husband.

"Why did I suspect Simon Burgio?" asked Maria, 20. "He was married, but he was in love with me and wanted me to leave my husband. I refused, but for months before the murder he kept running around my house to see Calogero. Only a few days after my husband died — even though I was in mourning — he came to me and asked me to be his woman.

"That day I devised my plan."

Putting her grief aside, the young mom concentrated on revenge. She began to encourage Simon's visits and quizzed him regularly about Calogero's death. As Simon fell deeper and deeper in love with her, the pretty blonde widow readied her trap.

One night she told Simon he could make love to her. But at the moment they were to go to bed together for the first time she stopped him, refusing to have sex unless he told the truth about Calogero's death.

Losing his head to passion, Simon confessed the entire crime to his lover, telling her to detail how Calogero was killed and naming his two accomplices.

"He told me enough to put Maria. "At that point I had to give him what he wanted, so I closed my eyes and became his After the death of Calogero, that awful moment was the lowest point of my life. But I had achieved my aim: to destroy the man who killed my husband."

AVENGED: Maria's husband Calogero was shot to death.

CHINESE FARMERS WAGE WAR ON ARMY OF RATS!

Chinese farmers are up in arms over the tens of thousands of rats overrunning the countryside and eating their crops — so now they're tracking the pesky rodents down and blowing them away!

Five-man farmers in Anhui Province have taken to toting shotguns in the fields and guarding their grain silos ever since an explosive rat population has literally taken over the countryside and eaten more than 20 tons of food.

"It's been a nightmare," said Chang Sen-Seng of the agriculture department. "The rat population has just exploded. They're swarming everywhere.

"Farmers can sit on their porches and pick them off by the dozen. Things have gotten so bad we've had to hire out-of-work peasants to do nothing but hunt down rats and shoot them."

Officials say the crops mean-

cause they aren't losing as much grain as before.

Soviet troops track legendary beast to Siberian village

Army patrol closes in on Abominable Snowman!

By MICKEY McGUIRE
Correspondent

A team of trackers is about to capture one of the most mysterious and elusive creatures ever to roam the Earth — the Abominable Snowman!

The legendary beast has been rigged by a special detachment of Soviet troops armed with tranquilizer guns and an intensive rocket-launched net.

"The capture should come at any time now," declared Dr. Rudolph Plyushkin, an anthropologist who has spent most of his life searching for the fabled beast previously believed to dwell only in the remote, snow-blanketed mountains of Tibet.

"The creature was sighted near the village of Shestov in northeastern Siberia by an army patrol," the 58-year-old scientist said in a report carried by the Soviet news agency Tass.

"When I read the description given by the patrol leader, I just couldn't believe it possible.

"The description can only be that of the Abominable Snowman — a man-like animal at least six feet tall with a very muscular body covered in long, snow-white shaggy hair. Nothing else on Earth fits that description.

"But photographs taken by the intrepid soldiers wiped out all of my doubts. It is definitely the Abominable Snowman. I'll stake my reputation on that."

According to Rudy Vannoskan, a bring-em-back-alive hunter who supplies rare animals to European zoos, the attempt to capture the Snowman is being delayed in the hope it will lead the trackers to other members of its species.

"It would be a boon to science if we could capture an entire family," Vannoskan explained.

"And can you imagine what a sensation they would be on a zoo. People would flock from all over the world to see them."

Vannoskan said the Snowman will be taken by the same method used in capturing tree-shaving baboons.

"The Snowman will be driven into a clearing," he explained. "Then small rockets attached to a very large net will be simultaneously fired.

"The rockets will lift the net into the air and carry it over the Snowman. It will come down over him like a huge parachute. Then he'll be tranquilized and put into a cage for shipment."

One of the Earth's most elusive creatures has been tracked to the village of Shestov in snowy northeastern Siberia.

NEWSPAPERS around the world have been following the planned capture of the Abominable Snowman.

Bouncing bandit

Police are hunting for a bank robber with a unique technique. The man dribbles a basketball when he walks into the banks he robs!

Cops in Wheaton, Md., say the man bounced his way into a Citizens Bank with tape wrapped around his fingers — apparently for the purpose of avoiding fingerprints.

"He came in dribbling that basketball until he got the teller's attention," said FBI spokesman Jim Dearborn in Baltimore.

The robber fled on foot with an undisclosed amount of cash and has not been apprehended, police say.

Talking signs scold jaywalkers in Japan

Jaywalking is going to be history in Japan now that clever officials there have installed talking crosswalk signs.

Pedestrians in Tokyo who try to cross the street at the wrong spot will hear a loud and severe female voice announce: "You can't cross the street here! Use the pedestrian crossing!"

The talking signs are triggered by an infra-red sensor planted on the gutter. They can sense a jaywalker from 16 feet away. When the culprit so much as lifts his foot over the edge of the curb, his crime is instantly detected.

"The 'Do Not Cross' signs by themselves don't exert much power — because people can pretend not to see them," explained a Tokyo police spokesman. "But a voice com-

Four leading psychics agree: 1991 is going to be the best year of our lives — and possibly the best year in history!

World peace. A booming American economy. Sensational weather. Cures for deafness, blindness, aging and cancer. All these things and more will combine to improve our health, finances and peace of mind as we put the uncertainties of the past few years behind us.

Top psychics Andy Weiss of Los Angeles, Cynthia Chevalier of Paris, Rajiv Jha of Calcutta, and The NEWS own Countess Sophia Sabah contributed to this report.

The Countess spoke for them all when she said: "This coming year will go down in history for its unparalleled achievements in world peace, prosperity and individual well-being.

"The stars and fate are definitely smiling on mankind. We are indeed fortunate to be living at this particular moment in time."

Here are the four psychics' month-by-month predictions for 1991.

It will be the greatest year of our lives!

Andy Weiss predicts:

● Hole in the ozone layer is patched in October. Scientists discover the reduced use of spray cans and fluorocarbons has had a positive effect.

● The solution to the growing problem of global overpopulation is revealed in March by an amateur botanist who discovered an amazing birth control drug for men that's 100 percent safe and made from vines that grow like weeds in the Amazon jungle!

● Roseanne Barr reaches a turning point in her career in July. Depending on her response in the crisis, she'll find even greater fame — or see her TV show canceled!

● Millions of people flock back to churches and other places of worship during a worldwide religious revival in June!

● The mystery of UFOs is solved in June. Human beings from the year 3080 contact top scientists worldwide, admitting they have been stealing superadvanced time machines in Earth's future and using them to visit the past for the past 300 years. Now they are begging Earthlings to clean up the environment or flee extinction.

● In November scientists predict the best weather in 100 years. The reason? New devices that enable experts to manipulate sunshine, rainfall and other weather patterns anywhere on Earth!

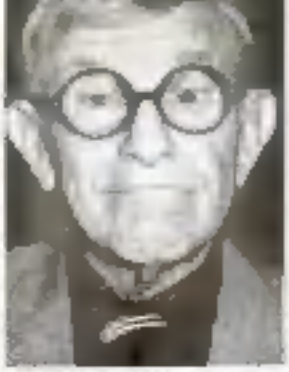
● The Hubble Space Telescope fulfills its potential with the August discovery of not one but two extraterrestrial civilizations in star systems located within our very Milky Way!

Cynthia Chevalier predicts:

● One of the world's leading rock stars reveals in May that Elvis Presley is his father — and he produces an official birth certificate to prove The King's his dad!

● In a staggering political comeback, a very much alive John F. Kennedy surfaces in August — and announces that he will seek the Democratic nomination for president in 1992!

● The discovery of a 127-year-old man who fought in the Civil War and still recalls the horrors of battle stuns the historians in October.



GEORGE BURNS becomes the new Mister Geritol!

● In February a major pharmaceutical firm discovers a wonder cure for deafness while looking for a drug to cure AIDS!

● The September transplant of a human head at a major American hospital turns the medical profession upside down, forcing doctors to confront moral and ethical questions they hoped they would never face.

● The development of an artificial eyeball in March promises to eradicate blindness, enabling millions to see again or for the first time ever!

● Princess Di becomes pregnant and gives birth to the first royal quints in December.

● America solves its homeless crisis when families around the nation begin adopting homeless people. The November campaign is called 'Adopt-A-Bum.'

● In July the surprise bestseller on the fashion scene — for both sexes — becomes the jumpsuit with pockets for mania, alarm clock, cosmetics, dirty laundry, sports shoes, briefcase, lap computer, heavy bra, personal protection weapons, compass and credit cards.

Rajiv Jha predicts:

● In January botanists discover a rare flower in the Congo rain forest that kills cancer cells and promises to wipe out the disease within five years!

● Global trade and cooperation agreements fuel a historic economic boom in February with no end in sight!

● The end of international conflicts in March brings true world peace and global cooperation that is unparalleled in history!

● America's drug problem will cease to exist when a synthetic wonder drug is created in July that totally eliminates dependence on all addictive drugs — including nicotine.

● In August researchers discover that babies born addicted

THE SIMPSONS drive Bill Cosby to desperate measures as the ratings wars heat up.

In crack cocaine have amazing psychic powers — and can cure common illnesses with their minds!

● Hunger becomes a thing of the past when scientists discover an inexpensive, easy way to convert salt water to fresh water in December and make the world's deserts bloom with crops.

● The United States assassinates Cuban madman Fidel Castro in August, liberating the island's oppressed people and erasing the scourge of communism from the Western Hemisphere.

● CBS replaces Dan Rather with 85-year-old George Burns who becomes the most popular news anchor since Walter Cronkite.

● In May a spice available in supermarkets everywhere is found to slow and in some cases stop the aging process when eaten alone or sprinkled liberally on foods.

● An eccentric billionaire makes like Santa Claus in December — giving cash gifts to millions!

● Proof that space aliens exist and are visiting Earth comes in March when a 125-foot UFO lands on an American aircraft carrier in the North Atlantic!

● Americans rejoice when Congress agrees in April to give every worker a minimum $5,000 tax refund in 1992!

Countess Eulah predicts:

● In March of 1991 an exorcist is brought into the U.S. Court to rule on whether Bart Simpson is possessed by the devil — with the ruling paving the way for hundreds of other cartoon characters being exposed as devil-worshippers.

● The Simpsons beat the stuffing out of the Bill Cosby Show — the Cos retaliate by converting to a cartoon format in September of 1991.

● In July Congress passes a law requiring doctors and dentists who are late for appointments to reimburse patients for the inconvenience of waiting. Only exceptions will be physicians who are late because of emergencies.

● The course of a killer hurricane is diverted in late September 100 miles off the coast of Texas. Twelve planes outfitted with massive magnets make history by flying into the storm packing 150 m.p.h. winds.

● In February, Frank Sinatra gives his farewell concert to a special 200,000-seat arena erected for the event. The Las Vegas crowd is stunned when Ol' Blue Eyes pledges $50 million to help in the fight against organized crime.

● President Bush and Congress announce a plan to balance the budget without raising taxes — and accomplish the goal by September!

● American kids get smarter. They may get a kick out of Bart Simpson on TV but achievement tests in December show our country's children are definitely not underachievers any more. National scores in math and science beat out the Japanese for the first time.

● Obesity becomes a thing of the past with the November discovery of a safe and effective diet pill that needs to be taken only once a month!

● The discovery of the world's biggest oil field in Libya in January sparks an unprecedented economic boom and reduces U.S. dependence on foreign oil for good!

● Arthritis becomes a disease of the past in September when scientists discover that a cockroach hormone reverses joint damage and actually cures the disease forever!

● Automotive engineers in Detroit and Japan simultaneously announce in August the development of cars that run on water!

PRINCESS DI gives birth to royal quints in December.

Court rules state-operated lotteries are illegal, forcing millions of Americans to give up dreams of Hello-Kaytos and round-the-world cruises.

● Rice cures acne. In January researchers find the gluten in rice gives those who eat it a clean, clear complexion. "Did you ever see a Chinaman with pimples?" asks one scientist.

● In July the Surgeon General declares that a cup of coffee a day after new research shows that the granny's cure-all really does prevent — or cure — skin diseases, heart disease, high blood pressure, high cholesterol, internal problems and several kinds of cancer.

● The no-smoking movement becomes so strong by October that smokers go to the Bahamas or Mexico if they want to smoke in public.

Grieving hubby digs up wife's corpse

. . . because he missed his Mrs.

By MICHAEL TOBO

Grieving Jean Collet couldn't bear the thought of his beloved wife lying in a cold dark tomb, so five years after her death he dug up her rotted corpse and took it home with him.

The pathetic man then spent three days trying to revive his mummified mate with black magic rituals before cops discovered his grisly secret.

It all began when Collet, 57, became obsessed with Catherine Collet shortly after she died in 1968. He talked of using black magic rituals to bring her back to life, but no one paid any attention to him, say friends.

Finally, he went to the town cemetery in Boucheur, France, and dug up her remains, taking them home and placing them on a stack of mattresses near his bed.

Collet then practiced his magic arts for three days in his bizarre attempt to bring the dead woman back to life. Cops visited Collet after cemetery officials reported the tomb empty, and became suspicious when he told them he was leaving with his wife.

Officers then obtained a search warrant and discovered Collet with his mummified wife's body the next day.

Cops countersued Collet to accompany them to a hospital and in the ambulance he spoke of nothing but his dead wife.

The body was returned to cemetery officials who re-buried it at an unmarked site.

Wife Catherine Collet, left, died in 1968 but loving hubby Jean dug up her corpse and tried to bring her back to life.

Rejected romeo jailed for making nasty phone calls!

A scorned suitor who couldn't take "no" for an answer has been sentenced to prison for making dozens of threatening phone calls to a terrified woman.

By JACK ALEXANDER

Ellen Damanski's phone became an instrument of horror, laced with obscenities, threats to kill her, rape her and burn her home when she stopped dating Michael Nolan.

"He made her life a living hell. He threatened to kill her slowly so that she would feel the pain. He said he was Mafia and that she would beg to die after he got through raping her," Deputy Prosecutor Scott Peterson told The NEWS.

"He said he could find her no matter where she tried to hide. He threatened to burn her house down as well as her family's house," said Peterson.

Miss Damanski, 32, said she met Nolan, 31, in a Seattle restaurant last September. "He seemed very normal," she said.

After two dates with Nolan, she decided not to see him anymore. Nolan harassed her with phone calls and showed up at her home a week later. She called the cops.

"That's when Nolan began his campaign of threatening calls . . . five or six a week for more than five months," said Prosecutor Peterson.

She couldn't change her phone number or get an unlisted number because she said counselors from her home.

"He calls came in on her answering machine. She would flip on the machine to get her calls and hear his voice," said Peterson.

The prosecutor's office and Seattle police transcribed his calls off the machine and charged him with making threatening phone calls.

But the calls didn't stop even Nolan was jailed. He called Miss Damanski at least 81 times from the Seattle jail, posing as the prosecutor in the case.

Judge Carmen Otero sentenced Nolan to 37 months in prison on three counts of the more serious charge of intimidating a witness. Nolan could be released in about 34 months.

As the words left the courtroom, he looked at the distraught woman and said, "I'll be out in a year. You can count on it."

The nightmare has changed the poor victim's life and she wonders about the future.

"He knows where I live."

Dead man watches TV — from the grave!

By LAUREL ROWE
Correspondent

Lazybones Claude Deyers was so wild about television soap operas and sitcoms that the day he died he phoned a local store — and had a satellite dish installed at his graveside!

"Just hours before he passed away, Claude was on the phone telling them to get that dish hooked up out at the cemetery," recalled his grieving widow Marisa, 48.

"He knew he didn't have much time left, and he wanted to make sure if they had TV in heaven, he'd be able to get all his favorite channels.

"That was his idea of heaven, sitting around watching all those silly shows 16 hours a day — just like he did when he was alive."

Couch potato Claude was a hardworking mining executive who hardly watched a lick of TV until he retired 10 years ago and settled into a life of dynasty and I Love Lucy reruns.

"When he was working, he used to scoff at television, and he was always screaming at the kids to turn the damn thing off," said mother-of-three Marisa.

"Then he turned 50 and they forced him to retire. It was like he came home from work one day, sat down, turned on the television and just never got up."

For the last decade of his life, the glassy-eyed grandpa sat glued to the tube from 8 a.m. till after midnight every single day.

"He'd watch anything that moved. But he loved cop shows and those ridiculous soap operas," his daughter Dani, 23, told reporters in Brussels, Belgium.

"Mom would have to wait on him hand and foot, because once he flicked on that set, he wouldn't budge for anything.

"My father was the ultimate television addict. Even as a terminally ill patient, 76-year-old Claude had no intention of dying of cancer — turning the tortured cancer patient's thoughts to the hereafter. "Suddenly, he started worrying about what it was going to be like in heaven — and especially whether they would have television up there," said teary-eyed Marisa.

"He just couldn't stand the thought of being without his beloved television."

So as his life flickered to its end, the ratbird retiree desperately tried to make sure he'd have clear reception in the great beyond — by erecting a satellite dish right next to his grave.

"And once he had that all arranged, he slipped quietly away," his weary widow recalled.

"Knowing he'd have that dish there put him at peace with the world."

Salty seawater cures disease, say experts

By SUSAN JIMISON

Thousands of ailing folks are flocking to take advantage of a powerful cure for psoriasis — the Dead Sea!

According to experts, the skin disease clears up in more than 70 percent of the people who bask in the sun and saltwater of the Israeli sea, which is famous for its high levels of salt and other minerals.

"The treatment is simple and painless. It's like a vacation, and it works like a miracle," said Ruth Franz, 45, of Mannheim, Germany.

"I go home cured."

Research has shown that bathing in the salty waters and sunbathing on the shores of the Dead Sea for a month result in clearing of the skin almost for three months to several years in the majority of patients.

The sea also can help sufferers of allergies,

Terrifying 20 minutes in the coils of death!

Giant snake tries to snack on scientist!

Wildlife biologist Dalal Oubari had a harrowing brush with death when she was snatched into the suffocating coils of a hungry, 150-pound Burmese python!

The 25-year-old Texas woman was held captive by the 15-foot-long snake for about 20 minutes before it finally released her. "I was in the wrong place at the wrong time," Dalal told The NEWS.

"I was giving it water, and was [illegible] thought that I was fond.

"But I was more worried about the pain in my knee than I was about being eaten.

"It had my knee in its mouth and it couldn't let go. The pain was incredible." Dalal, who works at the M.D. Anderson Cancer Center near Austin, Tex., was doing volunteer work at an outdoor learning center near Dallas when Katy, the python made a sudden and surprising attack. Katy was due for its weekly meal of rabbits or chickens on the day Dalal opened the cage and bent down to change its water.

In a blur of motion, normally docile Katy struck. It locked its teeth on Dalal's knee and coiled its powerful body around the young biologist as she frantically tried to scramble free. Slowly but steadily, the python began to squeeze the human prey.

Contrary to popular belief, constrictor snakes such as pythons and boas don't kill their victims by crushing them. Instead, the tightening coils prevent the victim from breathing and they die outright or lose consciousness long enough to be devoured.

Other workers heard Dalal's terrified screams and raced to her aid. They struggled desperately in a fruitless effort to pry the powerful snake from her body.

Finally, after some 20 minutes that must have seemed an eternity for Dalal, the snake released its grip on its meal.

"It was just one of those things that happen," Dalal explained. "When you work around animals, you have to expect things like that."

Katy is a featured attraction at the Outdoor Learning Center in Plano and is frequently handled by children under the close supervision of experienced handlers.

Women who have fat removed from their hips, tummies and thighs by liposuction often sprout bigger breasts!

Researchers at Ohio State University, who first noted the phenomenon, said increasing breast size may be the body's way of compensating for lost fat.

The worst grooming mistake you can make in the business world is wearing unshined shoes, a survey of top execs reveals. Among the 250 personnel execs interviewed, good grooming was considered either extremely important or very important by 89 percent of the respondents.

Unkempt fingernails and wearing uncoordinated clothing followed closely behind unshined shoes as major no-nos.

Dirt-hating weirdo is a real-life Mr. Clean!

By LAUREL BOWIE
Correspondent

Dirt-hating Dino Krulic is so terrified of germs that he takes a three-hour shower every morning, brushes his teeth for 45 minutes after every meal — and goes through 35 bars of soap a week.

The scrub-crazy computer whiz uses 250 yards of dental floss each month and often spends two hours just washing veggies for his dinner salad.

"I just like to keep clean, you know, because there are germs and bacteria everywhere you look," said dirt-shy Dino, 27. "You've got to get them before they get you."

"I certainly can't see anything wrong with that."

But a flabbergasted judge ordered Dino to undergo psychiatric counseling after he got caught stealing suds at a Buenos Aires, Argentina, store with 33 bars of soap stuffed inside his pants.

Defense attorney Angel Decesi told the court the kooky sleuth had to steal the soap because he'd lost his job at a local accounting firm. "His boss fired him because he was always in the bathroom washing his hands and brushing his teeth," Decesi said.

"When he wasn't washing his hands or brushing his teeth, he was scrubbing the keys of his computer with some kind of disinfectant.

"All that washing made it impossible for him to get any work done."

Immaculate Dino said he normally hops out of bed at 4:30 a.m. to begin his morning shower, even though he no longer has to worry about getting that to work.

"I look forward to my shower. It's the happiest part of my day," the hefty bachelor admitted. "All that extra water running over my body makes me feel so clean.

"I usually shower and wash my hair from 4:30 to 7:30, and then I brush and floss till nearly 9:30."

Next, Dino said, he goes to work preparing and dusting his tiny, two-room apartment.

Mr. Clean also confessed he wouldn't think of eating an apple or a tomato without scrubbing it for at least an hour.

"You never know who's been handling them," he said.

Judge Diego Estevez said he agreed that cleanliness is next to Godliness but said he thought soap-swiping Dino is taking things way too far. He agreed to place him on probation for theft on condition he begin seeing a psychiatrist.

"Frankly, I think you're a mess," Judge Estevez told him.

Shower nut goes through 35 bars of soap a week!

SOAP-CRAZY Dino Krulic gets up at 4:30 a.m. for his three-hour morning shower. "It's the happiest time of my day," he says.

HOLY SMOKE

Health-conscious priests of a little-known religious sect in Turkey say they will go on strike for body-heated gas — for having to inhale incense smoke during daily services!

The priests are demanding a $30 hike in their $130 monthly pay as compensation for the intense stench they breathe.

"The incense is so bad as cigarette and cigar smoke," a sect spokesman explained.

"But so far, we have had a lot of inhaling incense . . . have they?"

No jail for Connecticut student who pinched principal's butt

Giddy graduate William Guilford got carried away during high school commencement ceremonies, pinched his principal on the butt — and nearly went to jail for it!

The priest so angered John Dodig, head of Cheshire High School in Cheshire, Conn., that he went to police and pressed charges. The 17-year-old was forced to publish a letter of apology in the local newspaper to avoid arrest.

"I deeply regret the actions that I took on the evening of my graduation from Cheshire High School," Guilford wrote in his humble apology.

Packed sportingly at the standard June 15 graduation ceremony, veteran ex-Guilford accepted his diploma from his principal — then suddenly turned and playfully pinched Dodig's behind.

Shocked as Dodig reacted for the next student's diploma.

Guilford then went back to his place among the students and a flustered Dodig continued giving out diplomas.

But three days later, Dodig filed a complaint with the Cheshire Police Department, who considered doing charges against Guilford. But because of Guilford's absolutely modest just in bring charges against the teen, preferring to work out a settlement instead. It was agreed that Guilford would write a letter apologizing for pinching his principal's posterior and Dodig would drop charges.

Guilford's letter was published July 28 in The Cheshire Herald, but he refused to make other comments on his disastrous pin.

DEATHS FORETOLD: Sal Mineo was fatally stabbed and Nick Adams hanged himself. "We're all cursed," Sal James Dean once told Mineo.

Cursed!

New report reveals: James Dean foresaw friends' violent deaths — AND HIS OWN!

Not only was James Dean's car cursed, but a new report says the sensational young star and his best friends Natalie Wood, Sal Mineo and Nick Adams were cursed too!

"We're all cursed," Dean told Mineo while they were shooting Rebel Without a Cause. "We are the young ones put on Earth to make the old ones wake up."

"Jimmy had some sort of odd idea that since Natalie and Nick and I were getting close to him, we would be cursed too and all die violent deaths." That was how Mineo explained it to a writer in November 1964. Mineo sounds cynical on the taped interview, yet within the next 15 years, he would be stabbed to death, Wood would drown, and Adams would commit suicide.

Dean apparently was weird to the core. This is how Judy Garland described an all-night session at his house.

"In the center of the room was a coffin, in which he slept. And he wanted us to sit around the coffin and try to reach the spirit of his mother. Most of the part of us thought he was kidding, but then he began talking about death and how he was put ON this world but he was not TO this world."

Dean once explained to gossip grande dame Hedda Hopper what he was doing hanging around with an actress who played Vampira on a Hollywood TV station.

"I have never taken Vampira out, and I should like to clear that up. I have a fairly adequate knowledge of satanic forces, and I was interested to find out if this girl was possessed by such a force."

By the way, the Porsche Spyder that Dean died in, and whose spare parts were used in cars that caused the deaths of four other drivers and severe injuries in two others, disappeared from a sealed boxcar on the way to California from Florida in 1960. — The Robb Report

Hacker Ike Turner, doing 18 months for probation violation, says all those stories about him beating up leggy ex-wife Tina are just so much jive, well, semi-jive.

"They exaggerated everything I've ever done. They say I broke her jawbone, well I did do that, man. If a woman stands up there close to me, screaming at me . . ." Ike explains. "In our whole life we only had six or seven fights. I'm not violent. I had a temper." — Mirror Herald

Carrie Fisher thinks great writers are the most interesting kind of guys. "Like my ex-husband, Paul Simon. But you have to constantly arrange yourself around them, and that can take up a lot of energy," says the diminutive daughter of Debbie and Eddie.

"I mean you don't go, 'Why don't YOU cook dinner tonight, dear, for a change, instead of writing a great song?' I loved what he did with words. But I wanted to do some of that, too." And she did, too. Carrie's second book, Surrender the Pink, is due out this year. — Interview

Waif of Heart star Laura Dern who never smoked in her life, collapsed with nicotine poisoning after having to smoke 4,000 cigarettes during the 12 weeks it took to film the new David Lynch flick. That's about 50 butts a day.

"I suddenly felt dreadfully sick. The room started spinning and I passed out and fell to the floor," says wee Laura. "An emergency doctor said I couldn't carry on filming if I kept smoking. I had literally poisoned myself with nicotine — and even the sniff of a cigarette for the next month made me sick." Laggy Laura was ready to do all for her art. I'M NOT a bitch but I play one on TV, says torching Fairchild

Fans attack Morgan Fairchild for playing bitches on TV!

Morgan Fairchild plays the home-wrecking super-bitch on TV so well she's been attacked on the street by angry fans.

"I am often hounded down by people charging at me screaming: 'Hey you bitch,'" says lusty Morgan, who's broken hearts as Dallas, Falcon Crest and Flamingo Road.

"They would get very angry and abusive. It was almost like they had a rush of adrenalin and they would run up and grab me," she says.

"I am proudly quite tiny at 5-4, with small hands, and these people would really hurt me. They would jump over cars to get at me. I've had my hair pulled and I've been punched. I've had to defend myself. I've had to fight off a lot of people.

And it wasn't only guys who gave the blonde beauty a hard time. "People, especially women, would attack me in supermarkets. It was unbelievable but very frightening."

Morgan still shudders at the horror stories these TV fan-atics spout. "I never saw them coming and they would run up behind me and attack me around the head with handbags saying things like 'Leave that woman's husband alone, you cruel bitch.'"

The fairchild is showing a blonder side in Heinous miniseries in England, trying to shake off her bad-girl image. —

But first, please take a few seconds right now, to get the facts about foot pain and how you can put an end to it... once and for all.

The Facts About Foot Pain

It's a fact that most foot problems occur when the bones in your feet move out of alignment. They just don't support your feet like they used to. The causes of misalignment can be anything from standing on your feet for many hours at a stretch, to wearing the wrong size or type of shoe, to not getting enough exercise... Even growing older can be the culprit.

Foot ills, foot problems become foot pain when your feet simply can't support you properly any longer. And this can lead to a whole range of conditions -bunions, blisters, calluses, corns, backaches, heel spurs, fallen arches, high arches, hot and tender balls, tired feet, "bad" ankles, calf pain, and improper hip alignment. Too, lower back pain and headaches can also be the result. But, it's not just your feet. It's your whole body that can suffer.

Just a step away from eternity!

Mike Mattie shows how close he came to being splattered all over his neighborhood when his apartment railing collapsed — and left him dangling by his fingertips 25 stories above the ground. The 23-year-old Canadian was leaning on the railing of his $1,800 a month Toronto, Ont., penthouse apartment when the rusted steel supports suddenly gave way. Luckily, Mike had the muscle power to pull himself back onto the balcony before the entire railing gave way. The disgusted high rise dweller said in the four months he has lived in the apartment, walk and railing have collapsed because of severe water damage.

Don't mess with my mink stole!

Society matron stomps anti-fur activists

By SCOTTY PAUL

A hefty high society matron turned the tables on a couple of anti-fur freaks who stomped on her mink stole — and she stomped on them.

"They picked on the wrong gal. It's as simple as that," ruddy-faced heiress Hortense Hartman, who is 5-foot-8 and weighs 180 pounds.

Hartman, 52, was attacked as she walked past a plush hotel on the outskirts of Paris, France, where she was being honored at a banquet for her charitable work.

Two screaming waitresses — later identified as Steve and Iris LaPointe — rushed toward her and began to tear the skins off a dead animal around your neck, you filthy rich b——" they shouted, ripping the fur off her neck.

"I was stunned for a second or two, but when I saw what they planned to do with my mink, my blood began to boil," Hartman said a reporter.

"They were mangling all over my stole and one of them had a can of gasoline," she said. "They were going to burn it. The stole was a gift from my late husband."

Hot tempered Hartman waded into the lowly couple pinned LaPointe to the pavement and knocked him silly with a half-dozen punches.

Then she rushed toward the wife who still had her paint. Flapping mad Hartman grabbed her mink with one hand and the frightened woman with the other.

"I was a second away from making her wish she had never been born," said lucky Hartman, a citizen of England living in Paris. "I was going to cave in her face."

But police intervened and separated the two women. The LaPointes were taken to jail.

"That'll teach them to mess with me," said the sturdy society matron.

"My late husband worked hard and earned every nickel he ever made. He wasn't born with a silver spoon in his mouth, and neither was I.

"These animal-loving hooligans have no right to tell me what to do or what to wear. I respect their right to fight for animals. Personally, I've devoted my time to raising money, clothes and food for the poor children of the world."

This is what my unique vitamin formula has done for my hair at 50...

Why not find out what it can do for yours...by accepting the first full month's supply of it, FREE, plus 2 other FREE GIFTS for you!

You See, If You Have Problem Hair, Read This—At 50, I Have To Cut It Inches Off My Hair Every Two Months. Otherwise, It Might Very Well Grow Right Down Past My Waist.

And not only have I developed a special Hair Vitamin formula that helps make it that way, but I'd like to give you your first full month's supply at my Free Gift.

The full month is my hope.

I've included the absolutely unretouched photograph of my own hair, taken when I was 50 years old. It was done from photographs that I took myself, so that I could see without doubt exactly what hair care I

Now, I'd like you to look at the unretouched photograph very carefully - so carefully that if you have a magnifying glass handy use it, too. And ask yourself these three questions.

1. Is my hair like Adam's hair, showing hair care of a normal 50-year-old woman? Especially a 50-year-old woman who is just the kind of hair she should every day.

2. Does this hair have the kind of shine, the kind of shadows, the kind of life and strength you'd like your own hair to have today - no matter what your age?

3. And now study the length of that hair. Realize that it would grow down past my waist, if I didn't cut my hair when it grows that length. For by then it's been alive since I got the kind of growth, because they don't have to go into their hair the kind of energy. And if you're willing to spend one short month to try this, and see if you, too, can find an absolute joy help your hair look like mine — grow like mine — shine like mine - despite the fact that you may not have to cut hair to that length, and your hair, the absolutely proper nourishment it should have - then you need me.

And To Prove The Power Of These Pills, I Have To Tell You About A Little Chore About My Own Hair Right Now . . .

First of all, because of my glowing color assignments, I must keep my hair exactly 21 inches long. And it's not as thick and as strong this I can't have a single thought of. And it has to match 100 and shine that, when I did a TV commercial for a leading hair shampoo, the producer asked me if the wall or lightly put hair-powder on it, so it wouldn't reflect the camera.

Second, and even more important, even at 50, beauty is my business. I sell the way I look, as a model and as a beauty expert. And as I neared each new age stage, even my own body began to believe the opposite message. After one look only what naturally beautiful, and I very much appreciate people who admire of years. And you can do that despite the fact that you're no longer "in the race" whether as housewife, mother, or working woman, at all three. But you don't have time to give yourself the "Full Power" nourishment you'd like your hair to have, every single day.

Therefore, like numbers, does this "Triple-Check Nutrition" Hair secret from those who have hair. For now many mother after I have begun a new-process blend for over 10 years - that I don't intend and could say how - that I often don't stop, the other day, in a proper glimpse at myself — and see that STILL look like me.

So Let Me Put It As Bluntly As This—

It took me 30 years to find out how to make my hair thicker, stronger, and shinier, longer. With each shedding the next stage after the next, I only let hair fresh all it. And I'd like to share my Number One Secret with you—prove that Number One Secret to you—without your taking a penny.

What I learned was to treat down as nearly as this. I found that the term "Triple-Check" Hair Treatment in the world - by far, far more than anything I could comparable BUT was that hair - in the proper blend of vitamins and minerals. For one very simple reason.

That no matter how much money I spend for a shampoo or conditioner or treatment to put OIL into hair . . . no matter how many vitamins, or hormones, or enzymes, or other concentrates or other substances it may have—my hair will never absorb them through the outside skin. And therefore the only way I can feed the scalp and my hair—inside! And the only way to through my mouth.

MEN! WOMEN! ARE YOU AFRAID TO TAKE PILLS but on the other hand—

"If you have talking or dressing too slow you may be right. I may be a no-doz to overcome sleepiness . . . but also you must have very special PROBLEM when these vitamin deficiencies are finally revealed."

Why not try the FREE OFFER - entirely at my risk!

And This Is What It Can Do For Me At 50.

And not even those rare hair used to cause many shampoos and colognes in a new shine, but then the ordinary over-processed unmanageable dandy you had you see an incredible kind of hair revelation overnight.

And various kinds you see, and various beverages you drink, actually destroy the vital B-complex vitamins that are so crucial for the appearance of your hair. So if your hair is aging, and falling, as hair, or even dandy, then some additional B-complex vitamins. Don't Under Number One step and nothing can ever heal a paragraph.

And, worse of all, if you were too hard on it the end use the wrong kinds of heat, as I do, and neglect your diet, as I do, then your hair deserves not to be the best hair's discovered at your life.

Within 3 days of the treatment I made through these experiments, my friends noticed an the enchanting of my hair - what I should admit we don't mean what we say were the endless way to help shop when I said "Vitamin-Rich" hair's permanent aging of your body.

Vitamin and mineral supplements are the subject, of course. But the question was, well, what part? I will discover when I drank of my bathroom, built in the early days. It was found with leather

Nevertheless, I Would Take 75 Or 78 Pills Each Day, Just To Get The Full List Of Nutrients That I Needed To Be The Job.

And then I started thinking about a new, combined "Hair Vitamin" that - unrelated of the ingredients that I would list that I couldn't afford to be on hair free vitamins - and that one other vitamin that was the best hair to put the proper emphasis to the skin and nourish I offered as to be the best hair vitamins.

There are vitamins that are necessary for the health and strength of your entire body, including your hair - plus vitamins that help produce a supply of rich nourishing blood to your entire body, including your hair - plus minerals and trace "minor elements," all necessary to normalcy and necessary to be included in a smooth, healthy body, including your hair.

And when I analyzed many of these vitamins, and minerals, and trace elements, and added them to my formula, and then took one each a vitamin a day, plus - that kind of age 50—pictures of my natural to normalcy and regaining of your hair.

And That First Month's Supply Is My FREE Gift.

For now, my special Hair Vitamins cost $9.95 for a 30-day supply - the less than the price I had to pay, and you'll have to pay, if you bought [redacted]. But if you send me your check for $9.95, I'll send you - not just a one month's supply - but THREE bottles, containing THREE full months supplies!

What I want you to do is this. Take one of the pills, open it, and see it. Put the other very gently.

Then take them for the first month, and [redacted] on the specific ship delight you, do that very first month [redacted] and the other two pills, and send them back to me, and I'll send back every penny of your money.

So if you don't like them, the first pill is yours free. And if you do like them, the first pill is still yours free. So you've got absolutely nothing to lose - and so very much to gain.

Bonehead singer had better change her tune — or else!

I'm hotter than a Fourth of July firecracker that our National Anthem is under attack again — and this time it's not roly-poly Roseanne Barr but some shaved-head pop singer from Ireland who looks like a space alien!

MY AMERICA

By ED ANGER

Sinead — what the hell kind of first name is that? — O'Connor refused to go onstage at a concert in the great state of New Jersey a few weeks ago if they played The Star Spangled Banner before the shindig got under way. And the wimpy idiots who were running the thing let her get away with it, for Pete's sake.

But that set the stage for my hero Ol' Blue Eyes himself, Frank Sinatra, to tell it like it is when he said there the other day, Baby-face Frank said it all when he grumbled, "I'd like to kick her in the a..."

BOO! Patriotic superstar Frank Sinatra, left, was outraged at O'Connor. "I'd like to kick her in the a..." said Ol' Blue Eyes.

My sentiments exactly, friends. If this bald-headed bimbo doesn't believe in the Stars and Stripes then what the hell is she doing over here anyway?

And I'm pleased as punch that radio stations across our great land are pulling the plug on this bonehead's records and banning them from the airwaves.

Let's face it, Americans everywhere are sick and tired of these loudmouth pop stars treating our greatest tribute to The Land of The Free and The Home of the Brave — our National Anthem.

But these sick people are going to learn real quick that folks like me and you are damned tired of this crap and we aren't going to take it anymore.

We're going to boycott these stupid TV shows and dust all their records until they stand up and salute like they should and sing The Anthem with respect. We're going to kick these bozos where it hurts them the most — right in their big, fat pocketbooks, by God! And I've got a little message for this O'Connor broad — a bumper sticker on the back of my 1982 Ford Fairmont that says "America — Love It Or Leave It."

Toad licker kills himself

A man who licked a poisonous toad to get a hallucinogenic high went off his rocker and eventually killed himself.

Garry Murphy, 21, used a belt from the hospital gown to hang himself from a door while a patient in the psychiatric ward of Scarborough (Ont.) General Hospital in Toronto, Canada.

"His behavior had been getting worse since he licked the toad.

"Nobody knew what it was going to do to him but it was like a poison," said a friend who declined to be identified.

The NEWS reported in the September 6 issue that Murphy and a friend, Paul Cherrie, 20, licked the toad, which secretes an LSD-like hallucinogenic substance called bufotenine to relax its back.

The substance is a drug just like heroin, cocaine and marijuana. "It's a popular way for people to get their kicks," said one doctor.

Cherrie suffered severe nausea from the staged experiment, but Murphy was hospitalized with a heart problem.

Murphy spent a few days in the hospital and checked himself out over doctor's objections, even though he was on anticonvulsant and anti-inflammatory drugs.

"It is apparent his behavior was affected severely by the poison ingested from licking the toad," said a police

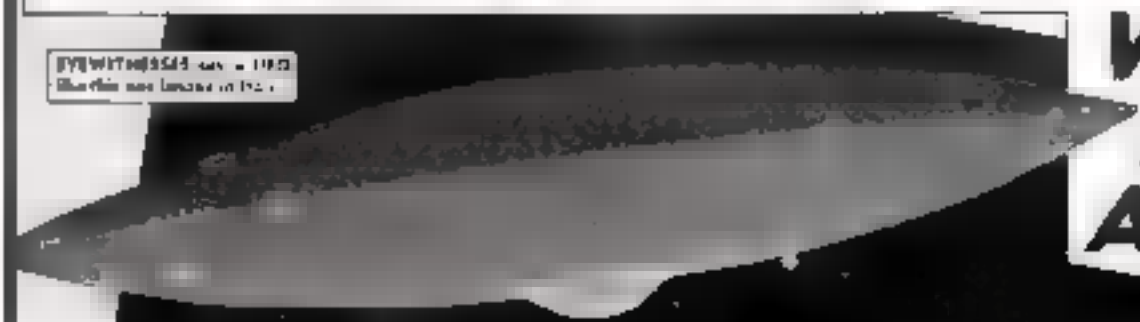
SHOCKING PHOTO PROVES . . . WE'RE NOT ALONE



EYEWITNESS says a UFO flew this way before landing in field

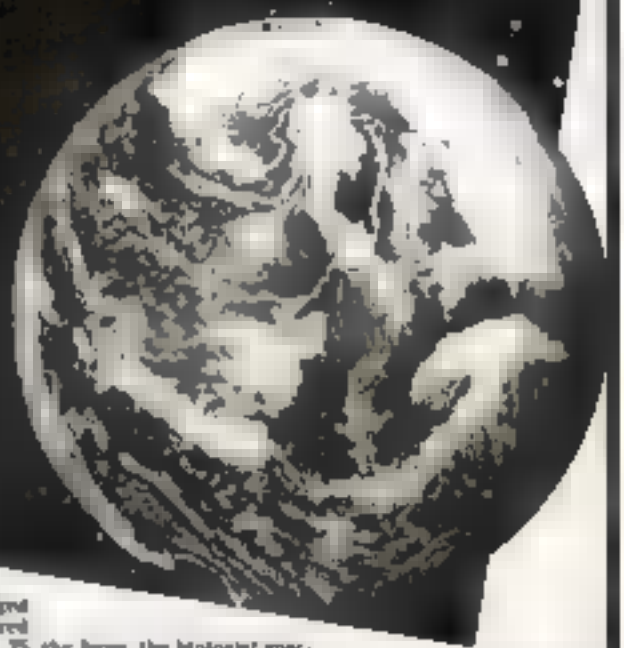
SPACE ALIEN POOP FOUND ON EARTH!



By MIKE STACK
Special correspondent

A biologist claims to have found astonishing new evidence to prove that space aliens exist — a 7- by 7-inch pile of extraterrestrial poop!

"The specimen we found was unlike any that have ever been discovered on this planet," Dr. Gustavo L. Mendez told reporters. "The feces consisted of three plastic, triangle-shaped pellets that were flecked with golden glitter.

"I don't think it's going too far to say that this is a scientific discovery of the first magnitude," he added. "The specimen not only proves that extraterrestrials exist, it will also tell us something about their digestive systems and what they eat."

Dr. Mendez claims to have found the strange specimen after he heard reports that a saucer-shaped UFO had landed in a field near Modena, Italy. Out of curiosity he visited the alleged landing site and discovered the poop beside a tree 75 feet to the west.

"I realized it was extraordinary right away," said Dr. Mendez. "The shape of the specimen alone was highly unusual.

"It also smelled like a mixture of kerosene and vanilla flavoring, which is a most interesting combination indeed."

Judging from the size of specimen, Dr. Mendez believes that the UFO the creature was flying in made a "pit stop" because its own toilet malfunctioned or were full after an interplanetary journey.

"A full analysis of the specimen will take several months but I'm sure it will provide us with a wealth of information about extraterrestrials," said Dr. Mendez.

Piero Palmer, the Italian UFO researcher, said: "We in the UFO community are anxiously awaiting a full report from Dr. Mendez."

UFO made pit stop here, say scientists

Teen wanted to be a cop — so he masqueraded as one!

Teenage Jeffrey Rider is in a whole lot of trouble with the law because he wanted to be a cop — and masqueraded as one.

"We are ready to charge him with illegal use of a police radio frequency and possibly impersonating a police officer," said Zionsville, Ind., Town Marshal David Effler.

The Indiana Bureau of Motor Vehicles is investigating possible charges of perjury and impersonating an officer of the law, he said.

"What we have here is a kid who's a little bit gungho. That's a 19-year-old who wants to be a cop and took a few shortcuts.

"I think he's basically a nice kid, but a bit gungho. That's admirable, but we can't have people going around acting like police officers," Effler said.

Rider said he wanted to do something good for the community of Wynnedale "so people don't have to carry sticks to walk down the street."

Rider had gone to Wynnedale Town Council President Warren Wright Jr. earlier and offered to be town marshal.

"I said, 'No, we don't have a marshal,'" because the area is served by the Marion County Sheriff's Office, said Wright.

But that didn't stop Rider.

He signed a document with the motor vehicles department saying he was the town marshal of Wynnedale and got a municipal license tag for his station wagon, said Effler.

With the municipal tag on his car and a two-way radio that monitored police frequencies, Rider began to patrol at night, particularly in the Zionsville area, according to Effler.

"Police began to see him more and more around Zionsville," said Effler. "He told them he was the town marshal of Wynnedale, but they were suspicious."

When Zionsville cops found out Rider was a phony, they confiscated his car and the license tag.

"I told him if he wanted to be a policeman, this is not the way to get into it," said Zionsville Police Captain Robert Klein.

Rider said he never had a gun, badge or red lights for his car and never attempted to stop or arrest anyone. Police have no evidence to the contrary.

"My main concern is for the safety of my neighborhood. I was just trying to help," said Rider.

"I just wanted to get something going . . . to get the community together.

"I'm the kind that likes to help people. I just jumped the gun a little."

PHONY VOICES

By SUSAN JIMISON

When people talk on the telephone their voices change completely when they call their spouses or lovers, a new study shows.

Women use babyish, lovey-dovey voices when they talk to the special men in their lives and they change the pitch of their voices to a higher, softer level, according to Tufts University psychologist James Mastergeorge.

Men who speak with their sweethearts on the telephone either soften and lower their voices or speak in a masculine monotone. Dr Mastergeorge theorizes that the voice changing is a way to connect over the phone and create a feeling of intimacy.

King of the cheapskates

. . . tells how to be a No. 1 Scrooge

By JOE BERGER

Hang on to your french fries and fabric softener. Get a grip on your guest towels and garden hose. Keep an eye on your ashtrays and animal crackers.

Moochin' Mifflin Lane is running out of the closet.

Money-grubbing Mifflin is the king of the cheapskates, a man so miserly he asks for separate checks when he takes his kids out for lunch — and an stingy he'd never buy anything he could bum off you.

"I'm cheap and I'm proud," he boasts.

Meet the guy, Scrooge is a spendthrift.

Lane is so sure right is right that he's written The Cheapskate's Handbook (Price-Stern-Sloan Publishers), full of tips to help us all become practicing pinch-pennies.

● Never buy ice cubes, never go dippers that has a saver charge and never pay to open a toilet door when you can most underneath on your belly.

● Choose your friends carefully. Tax accountants, IRS workers and heart specialists belong at the top of the list, along with anyone who owns a pool, boat or vacation home.

Also make friends with anyone who'll give you a ride to the airport and take care of your pets while you're gone.

● Remember, God put people next door to you on purpose. If you live in the suburbs, you have a right to expect your neighbors to lend you lawn clippers, tree pruning tools and traps. In the city, you have a right to hit up the neighbors for snack metals and a 38-caliber handgun.

● Always treat your neighbors royally. Smile, make complimentary remarks about their kids and encourage them to borrow a cup of sugar or anything that runs from them a buck and a half. This will make it a lot easier when you ask to borrow their lawn mowers twice for a week.

● Smoking is a social no-no. After a hike parties you should never in your life have to buy cigarettes, french fries, guns, throat lozenges, stamps, paper clips or fabric softener.

● Never have a party with less beers than you came with.

● Invest all your stock in that you will replace the item you've just knocked. Try not to laugh.

● Buy in quantity. By the age of 18, a reader might shop per should have enough toilet-paper toilet paper to last the average family a lifetime.

● The best (cheapest) restaurants are those with insect-repellent strips hanging overhead and cocktail napkins with jokes on them.

● Instead of a doggie or a pussy, buy your kids an iguana or a frog. During the summer they eat flies so you won't have to buy them food. In the winter, they hibernate or die.

● Don't let salespeople push you around, no matter how stylishly they are. They may act like they're related to the Duke of Kent, but they're probably going to take a bus home and have a can of soup for dinner.

ONLY the meanest miser would put bugs in food to avoid paying a restaurant bill.

SKINFLINT Mifflin Lane has written the book on how to be a penny-pincher.

Toothpaste for dogs!

London's posh department store Harrods unleashed a new toothpaste for pooches that will fight tooth decay and give your dog a breath as fresh as all outdoors!

"Dogs often have decaying teeth and gums, and their breath smells foul because they are fed on dog food that is soft and smelly," said Dr. Roger Mugford, an animal behaviorist. Dogs love the new Petrodex toothpaste because it tastes really, he says.

My trigger-happy hubby pulled a gun on me!

Dear Dotti: My husband is very sweet to me except when he gets drunk, which happens about once a week. And then he gets mean.

The other night Harry came home smashed and yelled at me. I yelled back and he put his pistol right between my eyes and pulled the trigger. I was scared to death, but fortunately the gun misfired because it's pretty old and he never cleans it. (I bought it in Texas and it was fully loaded.)

When Harry passed out, I grabbed the baby and ran to a girlfriend's house. But he's found out where I am and he's been calling me, begging me to come home. He says he loves me and I know I love him, but I don't know what to do. Should I go back to him? — Scared in Minnesota.

Dear Scared: Go back! Not unless you want to live with a real mean guy who gets drunk once a week and turns into Ted Bundy. I'd call the cops and get him thrown in jail where he couldn't touch me or my baby.

Friend wants to share my jackpot

Dear Dotti: I'm a 67-year-old grandma and I have a problem I don't solve on my own. Two weeks ago I won $5,000 in the lottery. The first time I've ever won anything in my life. A friend was with me when I bought my tickets and she bought some too.

She says we made a deal to split anything we won on the tickets we bought that day. I'm sure I never made any agreement like that, but she says she'll never talk to me again if I don't give her $2,500. We've been friends for 20 years. What should I do? — Granny in Washington.

Dear Granny: If you're sure you never made a promise to share the winnings, tell the old bummer to lump off. If she stops talking to you, she wouldn't have been much of a friend anyway.

Confidential

Dear Confused in Wyoming: With a wife like that, it'll make sure I parked my new porsche in the best slot I was sidelined.

Dear Shook in Kansas: You're a fool if you think he got that woody just washing.

Dear Stumped in Arizona: It sounds like he's having a gay old time without you.

Dear Harassed in Maryland: Tell him the next time that gas pumper runs the hose in going to wind up on the dinner table with an apple in its mouth.

Dear Mixed Nutbird in Georgia: That's one heavy week, even if he's gay-good.

Dotti, you need professional help

Dear Dotti: You're the most pervert, pigheadedest, ugliest old vice salesman of all time. It's too bad you didn't take lessons from Dear Abby while she was alive. — Nothing Kind in Pennsylvania

Dear Nothing Kind: Abby IS alive, you dolt!

Ho ho — I'm so unpopular

Dear Dotti: I'm fat and nobody likes me. Can you help? — Tubby in Michigan

Dear Tubby: No.

Granpa won't let me bathe in peace

Dear Dotti: I'm a 13-year-old high school girl who's got a problem with my grandfather. Grandpa still has bad with them and we share. I was a baby and when I was little he always helped me with my bath.

Now that I'm 13 and have a womanly figure, I think I'm too old for Grandpa to help me bathe, but he insists. He keeps barging into the bathroom when I'm in the shower and wanting assist. I get out as fast as I can dry me off.

When I object, he laughs and tells me not to be silly — that I'm still his little girl. I've had about enough of this, Dotti. What should I do? — Big in Chicago

Dear Big: Tell that dirty old man to keep his wrinkly hands to himself and let him know that the next time he tries to touch you off, you're going to kick him where it hurts. Then tell your mother exactly what's going on. She may have her own way of handling grabby Grampa.

Dotti will answer your letters — and tell a little it, too! write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33464.

Ask the Countess

Why do I dream buzzards are circling me?

Dear Countess: Night after night, I keep having the same horrifying nightmare. I'm lying on the ground, unable to move, while dozens of buzzards circle around me like they're waiting for me to die.

Countess, these creatures are eyeing me so hungrily I can almost see them licking their chops. I have to know — does this mean death is just around the corner for me? — Scared Stiff in Maryland

Dead Scared: Relax, you've got a lot of good years left. But the circling buzzards are an omen that you're about to be caught up in a strong emotional. Want a hint? Your local newspaper has pictures of you and a lucky married lady.

Dear Countess: My sister and I used to talk or work on other on the phone every day and spend all our weekends together. Suddenly last week, she just vanished and I'm afraid something terrible has happened to her. She's just 19 (I'm 27) and not very worldly.

COUNTESS SOPHIA SARAH

offers readers personal advice based on star horoscopes. Write to Countess Sarah, Weekly World News, 600 S. East Coast Ave. Lantana, Fla. 33462. Include your birth date. The Countess' advice is free. Do not send money.

I called the newsies where she works and they said she called for vacation off. The police said that's pretty good evidence that she's gone off somewhere voluntarily. But I just don't think she'd do that without telling her big sister. Please help. — Troubled in Oregon

Dear Troubled: Your sister has spent the last week and a half with a new boyfriend in a little beach cabin 47 miles west of where you live. You probably don't want to drop in on her unexpectedly — little sister's more worldly than you think.

Dear Countess: Thieves broke into our neighbors' house two nights ago and stole their TV. Now my husband wants to buy a pistol for protection.

He's never used a gun before in his life and neither have I, and the idea scares me. Should I let him buy the gun? — Worry in Los Angeles

Dear Worry: INSIST he buy a shotgun instead. Point it out the window and pull the trigger. Then both of you take a shooting trial you safely restrict. That gun is going to save your life before the year is out.

PERSONAL TO . . .

Edgar in Jersey: No way. That boxer has calcium deposits in his ankles.

Ann Cecily in Phoenix: Your hunch's fine. She's just a little miffed at you, as might be expected.

Worry-wyed in Maine: He means right around the corner, but the guy's name is Jack, not Eddie.

Fretting Dad in Manhattan: Stay by the telephone on November 1. You'll be glad you did.

Curious in Augusta: The girl can only make you miserable. Drop her quick.

They nearly drove me nuts, says [redacted]

Everybody who called wanted to talk dirty!

By SUSAN MADISON

Faith Farrell and her roommates nearly went crazy when their telephone number was published in an ad for a phone sex line — and hundreds of heavy breathers called to talk dirty!

The 23-year-old student from Minneapolis, Minn., says her phone rang off the hook all day and all night for weeks. Only after she found out about the mix-up and got the phone sex folks to straighten out their ad did the nightmare end.

"We were scared," said Faith in an exclusive interview. "It was like a bad horror movie. We thought someone was after us.

"You'd get heavy breathing on one line, then when you answered the other line on call-waiting, why, there was heavy breathing on that line, too."

I discovered my number had appeared in a phone sex ad!

She said her ordeal began in the last week of July when she and her roommates Beth and Pam began getting weird calls. Most people called, said nothing and hung up. But some got downright nasty and others left obscene messages on the answering machine.

"We got really rude, rude messages," said Faith. "They were about what people wanted to do to us and what they wanted us to do to them. It was all kinds of voices, even women's voices. Police said they couldn't do anything because they hadn't threatened our lives."

The situation got so bad that the phone was ringing every 10 minutes all through the day and night. The Farrells thought maybe someone was harassing them on purpose, but there appeared to be no pattern to the calls.

Finally, Faith contacted the phone company and asked them to trace the calls. To her surprise, the calls were coming from all over town and couldn't be traced to one person.

"We were mystified, too," Faith recalled. "We thought if this was one pervert he was really busy going from phone to phone."

Finally an angry caller demanded the phone sex ad and Faith got him to tell her where he'd found her number.

It turned out a local newspaper had published an 800 number, but local callers hadn't noticed the 800 and were dialing Faith's number instead.

"It was a national ad, with the same number as ours, except for the 800 prefix," Faith said. "They changed the ad so you could see the 800 better and now the problem is over. Thank God. We're looking forward to getting a good night's sleep."

FAITH FARRELL is still a little leery of answering the phone.

Tourists stress out park lions

Game keepers in an African wildlife park complain their lions are suffering from mental problems and stress — because they're afraid of camera-toting tourists on photo safaris!

The unhappy creatures have taken to hiding from jeeps and buses, abandoned their favorite watering holes and even avoided favorite feeding areas so they won't run into tourists, according to officials at Kenya's top game preserve.

"We had one male lion run howling from a human photographer and another tried to leap off a 100-foot cliff to get away from a tourist bus," said Nambeats Akiwa, wildlife officer at the park. "We think they're afraid of the cameras.

"The situation is getting so severe that we're actually worried about the lions' welfare. We don't want them to upset they can't travel and hunt normally."

Tour group organizers have tried to reassure the cowardly lions by painting their buses in camouflage colors and urging photo safari customers to dress in somber colors. But wildlife officials say if the lions don't settle down pretty soon they'll have to ban the photo-snapping tours. "These poor animals are getting nervous and we don't want trouble," said Akiwa.

Man of the 90s is a big dummy

The man of the 90s is a hulking hunk of man and he's on display at a department store!

The tall strapping specimen is a newly designed mannequin that was chosen to represent the new decade.

Ralph Pucci, a New York City mannequin-maker, created the new model. They stand 6-foot-3, fit suit a size 42 suit and sell for $995 a piece.

"This new mannequin represents a young man who is very much aware of physical fitness," said Mr. Pucci. "He is a cultured man and aware of what's going on in the world today."

...ounding. And that pilot told his copilot, 'Get back and calm them down!'

"As the ground crew approached the plane," said the controller, "the pilot shouted, 'No! Get away. We're getting out of here!' "

Members of the crew reported seeing the faces of terrified passengers pressed against the windows. They said the pilot himself opened his cockpit window and tried to wave them away with what looked like a clipboard.

"They started taxiing up the runway," said de la Cerda. "Seconds later, they were airborne and literally vanished."

Tight-lipped aviation authorities seized the tapes and a small wallet calendar — for the year 1955 — that fell from the pilot's clipboard onto the runway.

They have refused to discuss the incident but patchwork researchers including the famed Hernando Garcia Lopez, said the airliner obviously flew through a time warp — and may not have returned to its right time slot yet.

"There's no telling where it is," he said.

Sewers become playgrounds for Ninja Turtle fans

Authorities the world over are worried about Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle fans — because the kids are taking to the sewers in imitation of their crusading, half-shelled heroes.

In Melbourne, Australia, children are roaming the city sewers acting out the parts of the famous comic characters and raising concern that they might be injured or killed.

"Authorities fear children could be caught in flash floods or poisoned by the toxic gases which build up in sewers," said Chris Tsiaalis, an official with the water board.

In London, three firemen became concerned while marching the sewers for a gang of children playing there. They had to be rescued while the children, who had emerged from another sewer, watched the drama.

"It may be a crime, but these kids deserve a good spanking," said a fire official. "It's a dangerous game and nearly cost the lives of three firemen."

Dad chops up baby — and feeds him to dog!

In a gruesome slaying, police say a 19-year-old father has confessed to killing his 6-day-old son, chopping him into pieces and feeding him to the family's German shepherd!

Jason Battke and Linda Boyce, also 19 called police to their Queens, N.Y., apartment and at first told detectives their 5-year-old dog Appoli had attacked and eaten their son Anthony alive while they were sleeping. They said the newborn was crying when they woke up.

In the area where the infant had been sleeping in a dresser drawer on the bedroom floor police said they found his diaper and bloody baby clothing. They felt the dog to have X-rays taken of its stomach, which revealed parts of the baby were inside.

The 90-pound animal was then put to death and an autopsy performed on the baby's remains revealed that the infant was killed and dismembered before the dog ate him.

Detectives again questioned Battke and he confessed to the crime in a written and videotaped statement. He told authorities that when he was awakened by his wife crying he picked Anthony up by his arm and then he became so angry when the infant would not stop that he threw him to the floor.

When he realized his son was dead Battke dismembered the baby's body with a razor blade and left the parts along with Appoli's [illegible]

SIAMESE TWIN MILLIONAIRES!

Siamese twins Millie and Christine McCoy were born slaves, but the sisters went on to become such a big hit as entertainers that they later returned to buy the plantation where they were born.

Joined at the base of their spine, the twins weighed a total of 17 pounds when they were born in Columbus County, N.C., in 1851.

As children Millie and Christine were sold several times. At the age of 10 they became the property of J.P. Smith of Wadesboro and he started exhibiting the twins in Carolina shows.

Sisters born into slavery struck it rich in show biz — and bought the plantation

The McCoy twins, who thought of themselves as one woman with two heads, were kidnapped during a show in New Orleans and spirited off to England. But Smith and the girls' mother found them.

After the Civil War their career took off.

The McCoy twins performed their song and dance act before Queen Victoria and became rich in time. They bought the plantation where they were born and built several houses for their relatives. They also built a church and a school for black children.

"Millie was more quiet and shy," said Derek Inman, the twins' great-great-great nephew. "She liked to read and play the piano. She also did all the decorating for the 11-room Victorian house they built as a retirement home.

"And they were amazingly close. Doctors examined if Christine was talking to see if Millie could be talking to someone else and then pick up the conversation. Whatever was having a mild headache.

Millie died of tuberculosis on Oct. 3, 1912, and doctors said that even then it was impossible to separate the twins.

Christine lay in bed beside her dead twin sister, singing hymns and praying that she would die quickly. Seventeen hours later she was dead.

Their twenty-one room [illegible] with two thoughts. Two hearts that beat as one.

THE McCoy twins, Millie and Christine, always referred to themselves as one person, Millie-Christine. They were so at ease that one could finish the other's sentence for her.

Don't [illegible] outrageous weight loss claims [illegible] you [illegible] like one!

You know—and we know—there is no miracle to losing weight. The fact is, the best way to lose weight is to control your appetite.

World renowned Dr. Emil A. Schaerer of Switzerland successfully created this Dynamic Weight Loss Breakthrough without Drugs, Diet or Exercise!

Now the Swiss Kat Tak that has swept through Europe is finally available in America.

What exactly is the Swiss Kat Tak?

The Swiss Kat Tak is designed to be effective in helping you control your appetite—without dangerous chemicals, without growing hunger pains, without the hocus pocus you've heard so many times before. The Swiss Kat Tak is safe, and easy to use.

Hundreds of thousands of satisfied users across Europe have already benefitted from the Swiss Kat Tak.

Created by the famous Swiss inventor Dr. Emil A. Schaerer, the Swiss Kat Tak is a precision crafted ear clip which attaches discretely to your ear. This brilliant invention combines the ages-old secret of acupressure with the well-known powers of magnetism. As you know, the Chinese have successfully used acupressure for thousands of years; but it was the French physician Dr. Paul Nogier in 1950 who accurately mapped the location on the ear which suppresses appetite. Still, it was not until Swiss Dr. Emil Schaerer invented the Swiss Kat Tak that this scientific discovery could be made available to everyone.

Now the Swiss Kat Tak is available in America for only $29.95.

Auto [illegible] Honda — no union label!

All-American auto worker Pamela Richards refused to accept a sparkling new 1988 Honda Accord she had won on a game show — because the car was made in a non-union plant.

"I don't want that Honda . . . I'm union," the 28-year-old member of the United Auto Workers declared when she refused the $17,000 car and accepted instead a $6,000 cash prize.

"I just spoke my mind," the gutsy union hero told The Globe.

"The union has been very good to me. Taking the Honda just wouldn't have been the right thing to do. I buy what I build."

Pamela, a 28-year employee of a Chrysler Corporation subsidiary in Toledo, Ohio, won the car on a locally-taped game show.

Her comments about the non-union-made Honda was deleted when the taped show was aired the following night. But word about her pro-union stand quickly got around.

"The phone just keeps ringing off the hook," Pamela said. "I've had hundreds of people calling to tell me they didn't have the right to delete the reason why I didn't accept the Honda." Because of her proud-to-be-union loyalty to her union and her fellow auto workers, Pamela picked up and gave her free set of wheels.

A Chrysler Plymouth dealer there Pamela met her daughter Cindy in Huntington, W. Va., to pick up a 1988 Chrysler Laser to use for a year.

"The check has arrived and returned to accept that Honda."

Meet America's prettiest baby!

By JACK ALEXANDER

America's most beautiful baby is dark-haired, dimpled Emily Ann Ivy, a brown-eyed bundle of sunshine up who was almost never born.

The year-old adopted daughter of Bob and Carol Ivy of St. Louis, Missouri, won the Baby of America title as well as the hearts of the judges recently in the Dallas, Tex., finals.

"She smiles at everyone she doesn't know a stranger," exclaimed Emily's proud mom.

Little Emily was born in the squalor of a South American slum, the daughter of an unwed Peruvian mother who could not afford to keep her.

"We had turned to Peru because I was 36 and my husband was 48.

"We were told we couldn't have children and that we were too old to adopt children in the U.S." Carol told The NEWS.

With the help of an international adoption agency the determined couple spent three months and more than $12,000 to find the baby they'd always dreamed of.

The 31-year-old pregnant Peruvian woman lived in a small hut with her parents and 10 other children on $60 a month.

The night before Emily was born, a nurse at the hospital in Lima told Carol, "You better look for another baby because there are complications and she won't be able to have this one." Apparently, the mother and baby were going to be without a cesarean and then sent back to their small Peruvian mother could afford.

"I wasn't going to let her die," said Carol, who paid the $500 for the Cesarean. "If not for that, Emily wouldn't be here today.

"All we ever wanted was a healthy baby. I prayed for that in Peru. And it came to pass," said Carol.

Shy football star led shocking double life, say cops

Jekyll-and-Hyde rapist

By MARTHA ATKINS

Football star Mark Lloyd led a sinister double life — by day he was a shy college student but at night he turned into a masked stalker of women.

The fiend would handpick his victims from women in the posh neighborhood where he lived with his parents. Then he'd break into their homes in the dead of the night and violently rape them.

Fittingly, Lloyd's Jekyll and Hyde reign of terror came to an abrupt end when cops [illegible] Lloyd as he was trying to break into a home to attack his next victim.

"He was a real Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," said Detective Keith Mosley of Tarrytown's Major Crime Unit. "No one had any idea he was involved in this [illegible] at all."

"His family and friends are stunned. He didn't seem the type to do something like this. He'd never been in trouble before."

According to authorities the 6-foot-4, 215-pound star defensive lineman would break into his victims' homes armed with a long screwdriver and his face covered with a ski mask.

Once inside, Lloyd, 21, would tie the women's hands and push a pillow into their faces while he viciously raped them. He would then leave them tied up in their homes as he sped off into the night.

"These were very violent crimes," said Det. Mosley. "They say that while the two victims he attacked he was aggressive on between August 1988 and the football field in April 1989 both masked beast was locked up in a [illegible] treatment while the [illegible]

Ticked-off teen traps teacher in car wash!

A grumpy teacher was trapped in a car wash for hours by the cop's teenage son — who'll soon be kicked out of school for misbehaving in her class.

"When we realized it was Miss Garrison, we decided to make sure her car got good and clean — no matter how long it took," said Riley Goodall, who runs the car wash at his gas station near Dunedin, New Zealand.

Last week Miss Garrison had sent Goodall's son Scott Landow, who played football with Lloyd at Law being disciplined in class. He was later suspended from school because of that.

"So when she pulled her car into the car wash, we flipped on the machine and went about our business," said Goodall.

He had planned to trap her there until another customer pulled in. But that didn't happen.

"I guess she was in there for about three hours or so," said Goodall.

WHEN she's "all shook up" with pain, grannie Dolores Walker says she whips out her Elvis records and sings 'n' rolls to her heart's content bizarre rock 'n' roll remedy WORKS!

'Makin' like Elvis' is curing my arthritis!

Granny Dolores Walker had arthritis so bad she had to hobble around in a brace. But the gutsy granny found a way to cure herself — by shaking and quaking and making like Elvis Presley.

Dolores swears that strumming her guitar and acting like The King is what made her crippled ankle well again, and the Decatur, Ga., woman recommends her rock 'n' roll remedy to all arthritis sufferers.

My ankle hurt, but the love of Elvis encouraged it," Dolores told The NEWS. "Now it's doing real well."

The grandmother of six says she fell in love with Elvis back in 1958 at the age of 13. As a teen she delighted in singing her songs and even took her guitar to rehearsals and old age keeps it strumming.

"The love and desire to do Elvis just stayed with me. I continued doing it even after I had my kids, dancing around the living room while I was running the vacuum cleaner."

But eight years ago it looked like Dolores' dancing days were over. An accident to her ankle caused the onset of severe degenerative arthritis.

Within months Dolores' ankle was so painful she couldn't move, let alone groove like Elvis. Doctors put Dolores in orthopedic shoes, gave her a brace and a cane and even fit her with a special device that zapped the painful joint with electrical charges to promote healing.

Nothing helped — until Dolores put her determination and her love of Elvis to work on the problem. "I took the brace off and put on Elvis' music and danced. My ankle hurt, but I kept on."

In a few weeks Dolores found her ankle getting better.

Soon she was rocking and rolling, and singing up a storm. In her white sequined jumpsuit the sprightly granny took her show on the road again, entertaining others and ignoring the pain in her ankle.

"I kept moving and the more I moved the better the ankle began to feel," she said.

"Now it's doing so well I'm moving all over the place. It's a miracle and I owe it all to Elvis."

Townhouse of horrors!

Rotting body found in sex torture chamber!

By MARTHA ATKINS
The rotting body of a naked man was found wrapped in plastic and sealed in a coffin — inside a room that looked like a sex torture chamber!

Cops made the grisly discovery in a Houston, Tex., townhouse after a friend of the owner went into the house, smelled the horrible odor and called police.

Inside a second-floor bedroom police not only found the badly decomposed body of a man later identified as 34-year-old James Lutz, but the room was also equipped with a huge iron cage, a ceiling-mounted electric hoist, leather bindings, whips, chains and numerous other sex toys.

"It was bizarre," said spokesman Richard Utz of the Houston Police Department. "The bedroom was filled with all kinds of sexual bondage paraphernalia. It was like a sex torture chamber. The body was so decomposed that we had to identify him from fingerprints."

Detectives believe Lutz was a male prostitute and was suffocated in a perverted sexual ritual practiced by gays called "autoerotic asphyxiation." The victim was wrapped in clear plastic, bound with duct tape, and placed inside a coffin, cops said.

"It's quite a common practice among gays," said Utz.

After talking to sources in the gay community, police discovered the couple acted out a "master" and a "slave," with the master putting his slave through all kinds of acts of bondage and torture. Then as a final act the slave is tightly wrapped in plastic or paper and tied up and put in a coffin.

"It's like the grand finale," said Utz. "I don't know what kind of sexual gratification they get from it but they do." The victim is normally released after a period of time.

Police won't state if Lutz's death was an accident or deliberate but an autopsy revealed that he was still alive when he was wrapped up.

"His feet were bound with tape and the plastic was wrapped around him so tightly he couldn't move," said Utz. "It cut off all his air circulation and he suffocated."

So far no charges have been filed in the case but the owner of the house, Ted Long, is a suspect, cops say.

Long is also the owner of an area gay bar and has placed ads to pay prospective male partners for entertainment and fun.

Sleep & long life

Most folks sleep between seven and nine hours every day on expert says, and it's a good thing — because folks who sleep more or less than that die younger.

"There is evidence that people who fall within the seven to nine hour range live longer than those who sleep fewer or more hours," says Dr. Donald Greenblatt, a specialist in sleep disorders at the University of Rochester.

This modest townhouse was the scene of grisly goings-on, cops say, after they found a body in a coffin.

TRANSPLANT SHOCKER!

Housewife gets trucker's heart — and his bad habits!

She smokes cigars, drinks beer and watches wrestling on TV!

By LAUREL DOWN
Correspondent

Easygoing Angelina Padrski was a prim and proper housewife till surgeons transplanted a man's heart into her chest — and turned her into a beer-chugging, cigar-chomping slob!

"They might as well have given me a sex-change operation. the way I'm acting now," Hohhoegaston Angie told reporters for a European health journal.

"Before the operation, I couldn't stand the taste of beer, and there was no way I'd ever smoke a cigar.

"Now I just can't get enough of them.

"It seems like all I want to do is sit around smoking and drinking and watching the wrestling match es on TV."

Frankie Angie, 35, is convinced she inherited her bad-habits behavior from the rough-and-tumble truck driver whose heart she received in April 1988.

"We're still even supposed to know whose heart we got, but I did a little checking on my own," continued the hapless homemaker.

"I found the donor and talked to his family — and sure enough, he loved his beer and his cigars and his wrestling matches.

"Don't get me wrong. I'm grateful his heart is keeping me alive. But he sure walked up some bad habits along with it."

And netted Angie isn't the only one who's shook up by the mind-boggling facts of events.

Her mild-mannered hubby Mikko has threatened to divorce his beer-swilling mistress if she doesn't change her ways.

"Before her operation, Angie used to have her lady friends over for tea parties," or Pete's sake," said the Cape Town, South Africa book sshiper.

"Now she sits in front of that TV all day, guzzling beer and screaming her head off at those idiot wrestlers.

"And the way she stinks up the house with those cheap cigars — I think she's more man than she is woman now.

"She's now not the dainty, pretty thing I married seven years ago.

"And if she thinks I'm going to stand for much more of this, she's mistaken."

Even Angie's surgeon, already has cigar-puffing pictured "as taken on a totally different personality since her operation. "I was [illegible]

"It's as if they gave me a sex-change operation," says beer-guzzling Angie Padrski.

Dr. Daniel van der Weerd "We can only hope it's a temporary identity crisis brought on by the trauma of surgery.

"If it isn't, I don't know of a thing we can do to help her.

Only Angie's stepbrother Bob 19, seems pleased by his sis's amazing transformation. "Now I've got the big brother I've always wanted," he laugh ed.

"Next week I'm taking her beer hunting. That'll make a real man out of her."

BEFORE his heart transplant, pretty Angie was a prim and proper housewife.

RIVERT Mikko says he's not going to put up with his beer-swilling mistress if she doesn't change her ways.

Japanese kids to get quieter baseball bats

Japanese schools will be using quiet baseball bats soon so young players won't go deaf.

Schools there began using metal bats in 1974 that are considerably louder when striking a ball than metal bats used in other countries.

The noise causes a temporary loss of hearing that could become permanent over time, according to Yoshimasa Sakurai, an assistant professor of acoustics at Kansai University.

My wife dumped me over Johnny Mathis

— but I'll keep my NEW sweetie barefoot & pregnant, says codger

By JACK ALEXANDER

A feisty oldster is ready to remarry and raise a family now that he's divorced from a young wife who shared her bed with photos of singer Johnny Mathis instead of him.

"My 18-year-old sweetheart is coming out here soon. I aim to get her pregnant as quick as I can."

1957 Darrell Lewis says he likes only younger girls.

HONEYMOON didn't last long for Darrell and Diana (pictured) who saved more for Johnny Mathis.

'Crook swipes $ with fishing pole!

Cops are hunting a smart bandit who stole money from a supermarket night deposit box — by using his fishing pole!

Police in Mohawk, N.Y., say the player thief dangled a fish hook through the drywall slot, snagged a bag of money, then pulled it out.

The bandit got away with more than $5,000 in cash, $800 in food stamps and $4,000 in checks.

and holding romeo Darrell Lewis, 68.

The lone last year she was Darrell was breaking up with Diana, his 26-year-old bride of two weeks, because of her infatuation with the famous singer.

"She bugged her picture over and over again," Darrell told The NEWS last year. "Why should she be loving him instead of me?"

Darrell said the young bride kept an album never hearing Mathis' photo propped up in bed.

"And she slept snuggled up to a Mathis tape with his picture on it," he said.

The spry old codger has sold his house in Illinois retired and now lives in a Los Angeles suburb. "But I'm lonely without a woman around the house," said Darrell.

"My best girlfriend has no hangup about singers or movie stars. When it's time to go to bed, there's just her and me between the sheets," he said.

"Soon as she gets here I'm going to get her pregnant. And after she has the first one, I'm going to get her pregnant again. That'll keep her home."

Darrell admits he "can't march to bed at," but "I have a $1,000-a-month pension after taxes."

Older women need not knock on Darrell's door. "I like 'em young and I know how to show 'em a good time," he said.

Darrell has plenty of company — five cats and the kittens. And he can smoke his pipe wherever he pleases.

His former wife made him get rid of his cats and he could smoke his pipe only on the front porch.

SECRET POTION TURNS 'UNDERTAKERS' INTO KILLERS

By PICKAX JACK O'BRIEN

The ferocious tag team champs called The Undertakers are secretly spiking their food with a mysterious Oriental concoction that transforms even gentle men into bloodthirsty beasts!

"It's no wonder that those two act like murderous animals in the ring," said one worried wrestling official.

"They eat mountains of food every day, and it's all laced with a potent combination of ingredients that has been outlawed by every civilized society for thousands of years.

"This stuff takes away a man's conscience and leaves him utterly fearless. It turns human beings into deadly fighting machines — and no wrestler who uses it should ever be allowed to set foot in the ring.

Wrestling bosses began investigating the bizarre eating habits of the 6'8" World Tag Team champs after they'd left more than two dozen opponents crippled for life with a double-splash maneuver called "The Death Roll."

FLASH RESULTS

FANS' CORNER:

1.6 million French readers eagerly check his predictions every week...and the 17 million readers of the largest newspaper in America have given him the title of "the greatest astrologer in Europe."

For the first time, the great French Astrologer, Jean Rignac, offers you his help, Free of Charge, to solve your most Serious Problem

(He also reveals your immediate future)

Message from Jean Rignac

I have always been touched by the fact that people suffer throughout the year with serious money problems, failure in love, loneliness, fear of tomorrow, and that nothing is done to help them.

That is why I have decided to place my 45 years of experience as an astrologer at your service.

Thanks to the method I have perfected, which has finally been revealed, I can accurately tell you your future for the next twelve months.

The most important thing: I can tell you how to take advantage of your lucky periods and the good things which are going to happen during these periods (this is the most important part of your future). I can also teach you how to avoid those hard times—with my help you can quickly see your life completely changed.

The Greatest Astrologer in Europe

Americans call him "Europe's most famous astrologer" after he made a series of predictions in a well known American weekly, with a circulation of 17 million readers. These predictions concerned the lives of such famous people as the Kennedy family, Marlon Brando, Richard Nixon, Elizabeth Taylor, Queen Elizabeth, Sophia Loren, and many other celebrities.

And as the months passed the Americans had to recognize that amazingly everything he predicted came true.

For more than 20 years now, he has broadcast on Radio Luxembourg, followed by millions of listeners. And then, at last—each week in a famous paper, 16 million readers discover the page in which he describes their future, sign by sign.

The tens of thousands of letters he has received over the years prove the undeniable accuracy of his predictions. Many people have asked themselves how he does it, how he succeeds by fact the percentage of accurate predictions in astrology.

A large newspaper has lately given him the title of Astrologer of the Year with a score of 20 out of 20 for the accuracy of his predictions. This score puts him at the head of all astrologers in Europe, and perhaps, the world.

Ask the man in the street who Jean Rignac is and he will probably answer: He is an astrologer. He is a person who can reveal future events and who can help you to know what is going to happen to you in the next twelve months.

Jean Rignac wants to use his valuable experience to help as many people as possible and is ready to help them. He is very glad to do it for long because he wants with all his great passion again to be useful to others.

A Secret Method

As a youth, Jean Rignac was anxious to be an engineer. Always inquisitive and eager to learn, he asked himself this question. How is it that people can foretell the future of their astrologer? "How do they work with such formal exactitude? How is there when there have no mathematical formula to make it? Is there some thing true about astrology there?"

He did some research and very quickly concluded that it was true that there is something about the hours of daily astronomy, particularly in research there influences on each other and on the character and behavior of people. Little by little, he perfected a method that gives him fabulous results: predictions with an accuracy that no astrologer has ever before succeeded in obtaining.

Jean Rignac's Predictions

During the course of the last 30 years he made thousands of predictions. But here are the most famous ones:

Nikita Kruschev's downfall from Armistice Ordered in 1957. Barbra Streisand's love and health problems. Pompidou's secret visit to China. The war-day was between Israel and the Arabs and its exact duration.

In the middle of 1970 he predicted the death of General de Gaulle (which happened on November 9, 1970). The death of Charlie Chaplin. The end of Lana Lollobrigida's career. The stock market crash of 1987.

He has given us the hour-by-hour of the end of glasnost and several Presidents of the Republic.

Many of his predictions concerning the political or economic life of the nation are not published. But they exist, and some people have benefited from them. Their accuracy is amazing.

WIFE'S GHOST NAMES HUSBAND AS HER KILLER!

SPIRIT of murdered Maria Dolcetti told her mother what happened.

By REBECCA SPALDING

Smooth-talking ladies' man Carlo Dolcetti had gotten away with murder — until the ghost of his tragedy wife returned from the grave to tell of his cold-blooded deed!

Three days after petite and lively Maria Dolcetti had been laid to rest, her grieving mother, Anna Carlo awoke in a blinding sight at her bedside.

It was the ghostly figure of Maria who had come to tell her mother how she died at the hands of her husband, Carlo Dolcetti, a prosperous Detroit businessman.

Maria had spoken that night because she had been murdered and she had to tell someone.

Desperate to prove herself, the ghostly figure of Maria pleaded with her mother to help her. Then she told her how she had been murdered and where to find the body.

He grabbed me around the neck, Mama. His hands are so strong he just squeezed and squeezed. It hurt so much, Mama. I couldn't breathe. I couldn't cry out for help. He almost squeezed my head off, Mama."

Then Maria slowly unbuttoned the stiff, high collar from around her shoulder neck. When the last button was unwrapped, her head fell hideously from her neck — broken like a twig.

"Carlo hid my death dress under the mattress. It has my blood on it. Show it to the police, Mama. They will have to believe I was murdered."

Before astonished Anna could speak, the spectre vanished.

After hearing Anna's amazing story, police inspector Paolo Varosi had Maria's body exhumed and a careful autopsy was performed on Carlo. Corroborating Anna's story, the autopsy revealed that Maria had been attacked in the first cervical joint at the base of the skull. And there was blood on the back of her neck.

He went to the Dolcetti home armed with a search warrant. And there, under the mattress, he found Maria's bloodstained dress, where the ghost had said it would be.

Confronted with the damning evidence, Carlo broke down and confessed that he had murdered Maria.

The heartless husband was sentenced to life in prison.

Eight years later, Carlo suddenly began bellowing and screaming in his cell.

When guards finally reached him he was lying dead on the floor, his eyes bulging wide open in ungodly horror — as though he had just seen a ghost.

ANNA Carlo went to police with her amazing story.

Another way to keep cut flowers looking their colorful best is to cut them up the morning or late evening, strip off the lower leaves, then plunge them into a bucket of warm water.

Cooking with asphalt

Road crews in Florida have come up with the perfect way to treat themselves to a hot lunch: They cook their meals in asphalt!

While workers are repairing segments of Interstate 95 along the length of the state, they cook up mouth-watering batches of pork chops, sausages, ham and cultured greens in 55-inch piles of hot asphalt. Roadway inspector Bill McCord says the blacktop banquets are delicious.

Please — no cheese!

Burger lover wants to have it HIS way

Fed-up Larry Cundiff is sittin' mad over being asked if he wants cheese on his burgers at fast-food restaurants, so to fight back he painted the following message on the front of his truck — "NO I DON'T WANT NO DAM CHEESE"!

By MARTHA ATKINS

It's not pretty, fancy or even grammatically correct but after 30 years of frustration, the Portland, Oreg., man had had enough. He says the sign is his own just-say-no-to-a-cheeseburger crusade against fast-food restaurants.

"I'd finally had enough," said Larry, 60. "I'm out on the road a lot so I eat at a lot of fast-food restaurants and they're all the same.

"Every time I order a burger, some kid always asks, 'Would you like cheese on that, sir?' I know it's a little thing but it drives me crazy.

"I mean if I wanted cheese on my burger, I'd have ordered a cheeseburger. It just so happens that I like plain ol' regular hamburgers, no cheese."

The cheeseburger-hating dad doesn't single out one particular fast-food chain but says they're all to blame.

"McDonald's has been pushing cheese on me for a long time and I'd kinda gotten used to it," he said. "Finally, I quit going there and started going to Wendy's. Then one day the kid at Wendy's asked, 'Do you want some cheese on that?' I thought, 'Oh, no, now it's starting here, too.'"

The thing that makes Larry the angriest is that managements is training its employees to ask customers if they want cheese on their hamburgers — as if they'd like true, a ten apple pie or something to drink.

"They're wasting my time and there with all those unnecessary questions," said Larry. "All I want to do is get in and out of there, fast. That's the purpose of a fast-food restaurant. And if they're asking all those questions, it just takes them more longer."

So far, the one-man crusade has had a lot of favorable response to his sign. "I'll be driving and I'll look over and see someone with that big grin on his face and then he'll point to the sign and said," said Larry. "They know what I mean."

Batty joke backfires

Novelty store's 'wife-wacker' has women libbers outraged!

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

Women's libbers are upset as all get-out in Victoria, British Columbia, because stores are selling a foam baseball bat called a Wife Wacker.

"It's insulting to all women of the world," said one angry Canadian women.

"Our organization takes great offense at such a novelty item," said Tracy Peterson, executive director of the Victoria Women's Sexual Assault Centre.

"I'm appalled and angry that people would try to make money off such a horrid item," said Patricia Norris.

The lightweight, bright yellow bat with black lettering sells for $2.99 at Ken Fraserians Gifts Ltd. novelty store.

An official with Victoria's merchants association pointed out that some stores there also sell items such as Husband Wackers and Kid Smackers.

"There hasn't been a groundswell of protest from the men of today," he said.

Some folks think the women are making a mountain out of a molehill by complaining.

"I understand the work many people are doing to counter the issue and the pain and trauma and life-destructive effect suicide has on everyone," said Glen Peterson.

"The bat is offensive and tends to legitimize the theme of wife abuse, said Colin Mackman, executive director of the Cridge Centre for the Family.

Store managers declined to talk about the bats.

WE'RE ALL UGLY AMERICANS!

Although Americans seem pleased with diet and fitness, many are unhappy with their appearance, and only a fraction consider themselves in "excellent" physical shape, according to a poll conducted by Times Mirror Center for People & the Press.

For those who do exercise, the most popular activity is walking.

Puppy-killer sent to pen

Hot-tempered Everson E. Webb grabbed a wooden baseball bat and stabbed a dog to death for tearing up his yard — and got a 30-day prison sentence.

Webb said he had been drinking beer with a friend in Orange Park, Fla., before the attack on the mixed-breed puppy.

Extraterrestrial visitors mated

HOW TO TELL

By MICHAEL TODD

Extraterrestrials interbred with our primitive ancestors over 8,000 years ago and their space alien features are still evident in humans today!

That's the mind-blowing claim of anthropologist Henri Noblet, who has actually developed a guide to help identify people who bear the strongest resemblance to our alien forebears.

"Many of us have been influenced by the alien gene pool, some more than others," Dr. Noblet told reporters in Paris.

In fact, there are people who are better than 50 percent alien, being aware of their true origins.

"Like coins, find one, maybe take them for what they seem and look, we have given keys to the existence of extraterrestrial influences," said Dr. Noblet.

It's a simple matter to identify these people, he added. "When you know which features to watch out for."

Noblet urged [illegible]

IF YOU'RE DESCENDED FROM SPACE ALIENS

surprisingly well-received by most of the human-development scientists around the world.

Dr. Richard Graff, the German archaeologist, said there is plenty of evidence to support the French anthropologist's claims.

"There is little doubt that the human mind changed dramatically about 8,000 years ago," said the expert.

"We also know that the very appearance of humans became much more refined at exactly the same time.

"Natural selection and evolution are too slow to have caused such sudden changes," said Dr. Graff.

"It is more likely that they were brought about by the introduction of superior characteristics from an extraterrestrial gene pool."

Dr. Nahlol says the following physical features may indicate a strong extraterrestrial influence on your ancestry:

● Eye color is usually green or hazel. The eyes themselves are set wide apart in the head.

● Feet tend to be small and narrow. Toes are apt to be longer than most people consider normal.

● Ears are smaller than average and set close in the head.

● Hands and fingers are long and slender. Nails tend to be perfectly formed, but fragile.

● Facial features are usually delicate but sometimes appear to be sharply chiseled. Lips are either taller than average or unusually thin.

● Hips are taller than average in downright waifs. In women, breasts are small for build.

● Hair tends to be red or blonde, though hair color alone does not prove alien ancestry.

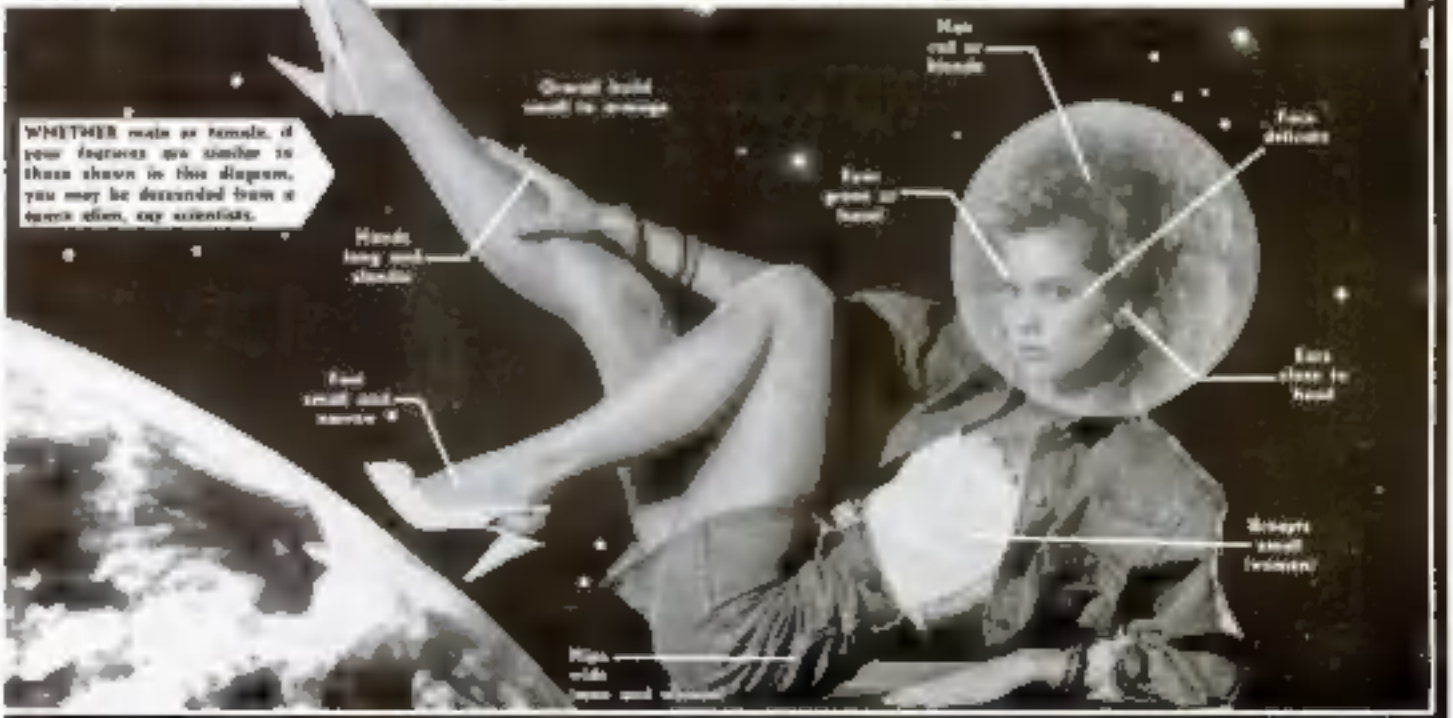
● Body build is small to average. Bones are usually weak and thin.

Dr. Nahlol said that behavioral aspects are important clues also. Descendants of extraterrestrials also tend to be:

● Dreamers. The aliens who traveled to Earth long ago were always curiously inquisitive and that is reflected in their descendants today.

● Smart. They have the ability to size up situations quickly. They are also highly adaptable — and often change plans in mid-stream.

● Perceptive and insightful. They see the big picture. Few ideas or concepts are beyond their grasp.



Woman cured of

Doctors discover way to replace diseased immune system

TERESA'S incredible recovery is making headlines around the world. Here her picture and story appears in The Mail, a London newspaper.

Wed in 1886 they've been together 104 years!

- Wrinkled romeo Elyas Djafarova says lots of kissin' and cuddlin' is the key to a lasting marriage, and he ought to know. Elyas and his devoted wife Hatyn have been hitched an incredible 104 years!

"Sure, we've slowed down some — but we still enjoy a little smoothing every day," said the impish, 125-year-old Russian farmer.

"A woman can't wander very far if you're holding her in your arms."

The easygoing grampa tied the knot with Hatyn, 120, way back in 1886 — making them the longest-wed lovebirds in history. "I met this beautiful woman in the village when I was 19 and I knew she was the only girl for me," Elyas told reporters in the mountain town of Yaroslavl. "And I guess she liked me, too, because two months later we got married."

LOVEBIRDS Hatyn and Elyas Djafarova found happiness.

But the river of love hasn't always run smooth. Hard-nosed Hatyn still scolds Elyas for his one extramarital fling — back in 1890.

"That was 100 years ago, but she hasn't let me forget it," said adoring Elyas. "I fell for a local farm girl. She could have turned the head of a saint.

"Once I even took her behind the church and kissed her."

And that's as far as either of these starry-eyed sweeties has strayed in more than a century of wedded bliss.

During that time they raised 13 children, who in turn gave them a grand total of 31 grandkids, 114 great-grandkids and 42 great-great-grandkids. Even from their rustic cabin high in the mountains, the amazing oldsters have seen the world go through a lot of changes. Recently they made a major concession to the age of technology — and bought their very first washing machine.

"When we first married, there wasn't any noise," Elyas said.

"There was only the sound of the animals.

"Today, the sound of animals is drowned out by the deafening noise of cars, planes and machines.

"I think too much noise is what makes young people die in their 80s. We only got our washing machine because Hatyn got too old to walk to the stream to do the clothes."

AIDS!

She's the first person ever to beat the virus!

Italian doctors gave a dying young woman a new immune system and cured her of killer AIDS!

"It's a medical first. A miracle," declared Dr. Lucinio Contu, who performed the controversial procedure that saved the 25-year-old woman's life at the Instituto Clinica Medica in Cagliari.

By ANN HUGHEY

"Today, 100 days after the procedure, she is still AIDS free and getting healthier by the day. If she survives six months — and we have every reason to believe she will — we will test the method on other AIDS patients.

"Then we will know if we have truly found a cure for this horrible disease."

Dr. Contu's patient, who asked to be identified only as Teresa, is believed to have contracted AIDS eight years ago when she was a teenager experimenting with intravenous drugs.

She was diagnosed has having full-blown AIDS in 1987. And by May of this year, doctors told her she would die before Christmas.

Dr. Contu heard of the young woman's plight and asked if she would be willing to undergo an experimental treatment that could save her life — or kill her in a matter of days.

The treatment involved massive doses of chemotherapy to cleanse her body of infection along with a bone marrow transplant to give her a new immune system.

She would also receive massive doses of the AIDS-fighting drug AZT and injections of blood mixed with fragments of the AIDS virus — which Dr. Contu believed might give her an immunity to the disease.

With nothing to lose, Teresa agreed to let Dr. Contu and his team proceed with the experiment.

Miraculously, the risky procedure worked and she has actually been released from the hospital.

"When you see your life passing away from you, you grab it," she said. "Now I want to tell people: 'Don't give up. Where there is life there is hope.'"

Said Dr. Contu: "As a doctor I cannot take all the credit for this young woman's recovery and health. She is very brave and has an incredible will to live.

"Without that, no medicine or treatment in the world can help a patient. Fortunately, this young woman never admitted to herself that she was dying.

"That has definitely helped in her fight to survive."

If wishing could make it so, this would be a strike for Christopher Rawlinson, 6, of Quincy, Mass. But it wasn't to be. The boy didn't put enough oomph on the ball and it stopped halfway down the alley.

Cops bust trio after photo store spots dirty pix!

A 10-year-old boy said he had sex with a woman old enough to be his mother while his cousin and another man took pictures.

The unidentified youngster told a judge he didn't know he was going to be the center of a he earlier asked his cousin to get him a girl.

Cops have arrested his cousin, Stanley Smith, 19, Brian Gyack, 18, and Vernon Pippins, 20. They have been charged with engaging in child obscene sexual activity.

Miss Pippins is a lawyer in Flint, Mich., for the 10-year-old, according to testimony before Judge Geoffrey Neithercut.

The youngster testified he and the woman were asked to disrobe and then told to engage in sex and pose as the men snapped photos.

During the hours-long orgy, the boy was told to smile and hold a cigar in his mouth while the women performed oral sex, according to testimony.

later raped across the film and resisted police. Seven "very sexually graphic" photos were submitted as evidence by Assistant Prosecutor Cormac Teigh.

If convicted, the three adults could face at least 20 years in prison.
